Brains of '51

Laurel and Nutmeg

Pomp and Circumstance

Class

Annually the faculty eagerly awaits a new crop of students from the surrounding tobacco farms of East and South Windsor, so quite naturally as the fall of 1947 drew nearer, they waited for the Class of 1951. What they did not know at the time, however, was that our class was the one whose main goal was money. They did know, though, that money means trouble, so consequently our class meant double trouble.

Pine trees predominated at our first sponsored social event, which was not a money-making affair but a return party given to the sophomores to thank them for their welcoming party in the fall. The party committee consisted of our freshman class officers, who were president, Curtis O'Dell; vice-president, Stanley Morrey; secretary, Jean Rose; and treasurer, Marjorie Bahler. The theme was poverty, so, as we were hobos, we served a peanut, a pickle, and a piece of cheese for refreshments.

The first business in our sophomore year was to elect as our officers: president, Bruce McComb; vice-president, Stanley Morrey; secretary, Jean Rose, and treasurer, Sue Hudson. We gave two socials this year, the first being the annual Sophomore-Freshman Party. Will you ever forget the fortune telling Madame Tenaj, otherwise known as Janet Lynskey? Second, there was a movie dance, which was a success financially, but let us discuss no more. Also on the financial side, we took second place in the ticket competition this year. Although we actually sold more tickets than the seniors, they placed first when results were computed according to the size of each class.

As juniors our first new business included the buying of the traditional class rings. Guiding us in this busy year were our officers: Herb Grandahl, president; Tom Jurgelas, vice-president; Gladys Sinsigalli, secretary, and Jean Rose, treasurer. Ever watchful of the class treasury, this year our class took first place in the ticket competition. This year we were also honored by the membership in our class of Mary Dzuibinskas, who entered our school after arriving in America from Lithuania.

We sponsored the Cupid's Ball, where Rosemary Riester was chosen Queen of Hearts and Herb Grandahl, King of Hearts. For the prom this year, Ellsworth students were transferred to Holland with the aid of our windmills, tulips, and Dutch characters.

In a schoolwide election Gladys Sinsigalli was chosen prom queen. Juniors, Herb Grandahl, Curt O'Dell, Ronald Roberts, and Donald Baltulonis, formed a court of honor for this queen and her attendants.

In the spring of 1950 we elected Marion Elinskas, Jean Rose, and Gladys Sinsigalli to attend Laurel Girls' State and Anthony Euskavech and Herb Grandahl to go to Nutmeg Boys' State. Marjorie Bahler, Jean Badstubner, and Thomas Jurgelas were chosen to marshal for the Class of 1950, while Marilyn Bolles, Aurel Dewey, Marion Elinskas, Lorraine Foster, Lois Huter, Georgia Karvelis, Marilyn Macdonald, Sally Morrey, Audrey Rivers, Jean Rose, Diane Stiles, and Sue Hudson were ushers. Marjorie Bahler and Tom Jurgelas were granted membership in the National Honor Society in their junior year. Our class members made invaluable contributions to journalism activities. In our junior year Marjorie Bahler was editor of the South Winds; Jean Badstubner, business manager; and Jean Rose, exchange editor. Jean Rose and Sue Hudson were chosen Co-Parade-of-Youth Correspondents. These four students were inducted into the Quill and Scroll International Honor Society for High School Journalists.

At long last the great day arrived. Our class president accepted the sacred front steps on bended knees. We now felt we were masters of all we surveyed. This point in our high school career marked in us a definite change. As we entered this, our senior year, we knew how freshmen actually look up to seniors, especially when the seniors are sitting on the cherished, not always clean, front steps.

As our senior class officers, who exercised much authority, we chose Herb Grandahl, president; Tom Jurgelas, vice-president; Sally Morrey, secretary; Jean Rose, treasurer. The first social event of the senior year was the Senior Get Together, which was a "School Daze" none will forget. With this school daze came the revived Charleston with the eight girls in the routine wearing original costumes borrowed from the Macdonald attic. At this time we also discovered the talent of Bill Jardine with his voice and guitar.

Then we held the magazine campaign under the leadership of team captains Jean Rose, Eva Pasqualini, Herb Grandahl, and Sue Hudson, who have not been notified from the publishing company of any errors. With Room 24 setting a record high for homeroom magazine sales, this year's sales were higher than those of any previous year with our net profit being $1,353.69. Harold Lagel was top salesman; Jean Rose, second; Bill Bradt, third; and Earl Kreyssig, fourth. The difference between the third and fourth totals was twenty-five cents.

Room 26 feted room 24 at that once in a lifetime party. And what about that magazine party did I hear someone say? Yes, that was when Yosh Lagel called for Harriet Shea and Jean Rose to assist him in singing "You Are My Sunshine" and Marjorie Bahler was asked to solve that mathematical riddle which she readily did with the able assistance of

History

Stanley Morrey, sound effects man, and the answer sheet. Miss Mohn showed us that what she was trying to teach us could be done by giving an extemporaneous speech on buttons. Louis Roe emceed this truth or consequences game. Granted a trip to New York in February by the publishing company's manager were Herb Grandahl and Sue Hudson and also three other salesmen who sold over fifty dollars worth of magazines and then had their names drawn from a—no, not a hat—a wastebasket. Lucky winners were Margaret Kissane, Earl Kreyssig, and Bill Bradt.

The Class of 1951 then chose the Ellsworthian staff, which was headed by Marjorie Bahler, as editor-in-chief. Others on the staff included Jean Badstubner, Jean Rose, and Sue Hudson, assistant editors; June Muir, Bill Bradt, and James Jorgensen, art editors; Sally Morrey and Tom Jurgelas, business managers; and Lois Huter and Stanley Morrey, subscription managers. The staff selected Eva Pasqualini as year-book typist. More elections were held, and this time the results showed that the class wished to team Stanley Morrey and Lois Huter again — to write the Class Will; Sally Morrey and Louis Roe were picked to tell us our futures, and Sue Hudson was chosen to edit the Class History. Meanwhile Eva Pasqualini wrote the class poem and Lorraine Foster composed the class song.

This year as class president Herb Grandahl automatically became Student Council president. Audrey Rivers was appointed secretary. In the three years that the Student Council has been run in the present manner, many of the senior class members have been chairmen of the various committees including Jean Badstubner, Marjorie Bahler, Marion Elinskas, Charles Gudnaitis, Lois Huter, Margaret Kissane, Ralph Larson, Sally Morrey, Harriet Shea, Nancy Sinclair, and Sue Hudson; while committee secretaries have been Patricia Allen, Marjorie Biggs, Lois Huter, Janet Lynskey, Marilyn Macdonald, Sally Morrey, Audrey Rivers, and Diane Stiles.

Clubs selected their officers from our class with the S.C.H.E. Club having Jean Rose as president and the Hi-Y choosing Tom Jurgelas secretary. Nina Parent was president of the newly formed Dramatic Club.

Do you remember the assembly program of the one-act play "The Florist Shop" given by a sophomore English class? Yes, Janet Lynskey played Maude, others in the cast being Herb Grandahl and Tom Jurgelas.

In the Ellsworth music field outstanding members from our class have been the All-State representatives Marilyn Macdonald, band; Lorraine Foster and Faith Jardine, chorus; school band and orchestra members Bill Bradt, Lorraine Foster, Marilyn Macdonald, and Ronnie Roberts; dance group participants Dolly Sinsigalli, Faith Jardine, and Anna Howard; and the accompanist for all musical departments of the school for four years, Lorraine Foster.

Ellsworth would not be Ellsworth without an outstanding record. During our senior year Donald Baltulonis, John Eckert, Charles Gudnaitis, Thomas Jurgelas, Stanley Morrey, and Ronnie Roberts played varsity soccer. Vital members of the varsity basketball team have been John Eckert, Charlie Gudnaitis, Tom Jurgelas, Stan Morrey, and Ronnie Roberts.

In the spring onlookers saw David Fairbanks, Earl Kreyssig, Harold Lagel, and Stan Morrey running in track meets, while Tom Jurgelas, and Ronnie Roberts participated in field events. Meanwhile at baseball games the spectators witnessed Charlie Gudnaitis and Ronnie Roberts on the pitcher's mound and Earl Kreyssig and Stan Morrey in the outfield. In mentioning athletes we must not forget the sometimes unrecognized work of Louis Roe, who was manager of both the soccer and basketball teams in his senior year.

Captain of the cheerleading group for two years, Harriet Shea, and her squad, which included three other seniors, Alma Carlson, Nina Parent, and Dolly Sinsigalli, certainly are worthy of mention for their work in cheering the teams on to victory.

In girls' sports Irene Clifton, Marion Elinskas, Margaret Kissane, Jean Kostek, Connie McGill, Jean Rose, Nancy Sinclair, and Marilyn Davies have participated in basketball with Marjorie Bahler as their manager. Irene Clifton, Margaret Kissane, Jean Kostek, Jean Rose, Nancy Sinclair, and Marilyn Davies have been members of the softball nine.

Individuals of the Class of '51 worthy of special mention in the boys' sports world at Ellsworth have been the following: Ronnie Roberts, who was a unanimous choice on the All-Star team selected at the completion of the Class C CIAC basketball tournament in 1950 by sports writers covering the tournament, Charlie Gudnaitis and Curt O'Dell, who rated honorable mention in this selection. Ronnie Roberts was selected again to a dream team by twenty small school coaches after the tournament games.

With this record of individual achievements in sports, the history of the Class of 1951 now draws to a close. As class historian I present these annals, duly edited and recorded, to be held as an example for all other classes to cherish, uphold, and strive to surpass. Longissimus dies cito conditur. (The longest day quickly comes to an end.)

Class

We, the Class of 1951, in order to form a more perfect Ellsworth, establish peace between the teachers and the students, protect the inalienable rights of the seniors, provide for the common defense of the freshmen, do hereby ordain and establish this to be our last will and testament.

Try to carry on where we left off, Juniors — if that could be possible. Always be as true, courageous, strong, intelligent, kind, generous, understanding, and as modest as we are.

Patricia Allen bequeaths her model appearance to Mary Jean Ahern. Try to live up to the high standards Pat has set, Mary Jean.

Carol Greer is given all the cute little beanie caps Jean Badstubner wears to school every morning. Keep up Jean's own special tradition, Carol.

Donald Baltulonis grabs his diploma and then leaves in a hurry in his snappy blue convertible.

Marjorie Biggs leaves her perseverance in everything she does to Janet Nicewicz. Follow through on the good work Marjorie has already done, Janet.

Claire Stolle will be the recipient of Marilyn Bolles' sunny disposition. Keep those sunbeams dancing, Claire.

John Eckert donates his ability to ride anything with four legs to Dick Woolam. Make sure it isn't a chair, Dick.

To Ronald Yelle, Anthony Euskavech yields his sincere smile. All the girls love it, Ronald.

Marjorie Bahler leaves her regular place on the honor roll to Margaret Parent. Bring lots of nice, juicy red apples, Margaret.

To anyone capable of doing the job, Herbert Grandahl relinquishes his many struggles as class president.

Jeanne Ident and Charles Gudnaitis regretfully surrender their many athletic talents to Gloria Grotta and Billy Martinez. Do you think you can get as many letters as Jeanne and Charlie did?

Ann Breor is to be honored with Anna Howard's seat under the stairs during lunch time.

Faith Jardine sadly bequeaths her job of finding Miss Dziob's music books to Betty Jean Burnham. Try to find the orange book that was never there, B-J.

Myron Burr is to receive the favorite parking space of Jimmy Jorgensen. Don't dent too many fenders, Myron.

Virginia Ellsworth and Bobby Sedar are the lucky recipients of Anna Prankus' and Tom Jurgelas' height. You'll surely have to grow to beat those two!

With a sad smile, Georgia Karvelis is generous enough to relinquish her beloved typewriter in Miss Kish's class to Beverly Hanson. Keep pounding those keys, Bev.

Margaret Kissane surrenders her love for the game of ping pong to Leona Euskavech. Don't be too hard on the paddles, Leona.

Earl Kreyssig gives his vim and vitality to Peter Zaleski. What are you going to do with that energy, Pete?

Arlene Luchina gleefully leaves her ability to pronounce the word "statistics" to Elaine Pola. Be sure to get your t's straight, Elaine.

Janet Lynskey entrusts her little book entitled "How to Talk For Three Minutes Without Taking a Breath" to Anthony Breau. Can you beat Janet, Frenchy?

Marilyn Macdonald wills her ability to twirl a baton to Jacqueline Daly. Keep those batons flying, Jacqueline.

Barbara McCray and Gladys Sinsigalli give their long, steadfast, loyal friendship to June Rose and Ina Pasqualini.

Sally Morrey happily leaves her job of taking around the absence slips in the morning to Sally Stiles. Don't mind those whistles and wolf calls, Sally.

Louis Roe joyfully wills his seat in trig class to Everett Bower. Watch your blood pressure when the homework piles up, Ev.

Jean Rose wills her ability to be in at least three places at once to Alice Kessler.

Nancy Sinclair leaves her uninterrupted nights of study to anyone who wishes to be a "Brain." Phone calls are a hindrance, aren't they, Nan?

Lorraine Smith sadly surrenders her little book of choice East Hartford addresses to the highest bidder. No pushing, girls.

Eva Pasqualini relinquishes her ability to pound out anything on a typewriter to Joan Butler. Remember, Joan, nothing under 75 words a minute.

Thomas Petruska sadly bequeaths his shyness towards girls to Wally Kreyssig. Don't try to take them all out at once, Wally; you may run into financial difficulties.

Harriet Shea leaves her cheerleading ability to Patty Eckert. Make sure those fans cheer with pep, Patty.

Rosemary Riester sadly surrenders her place with Bobby by room 26 to Alf Bowidas and Elaine Kupchunos. No holding hands during noontime, Alf.

Joan Rittlinger wills her hearty laugh for every class to Richard Lyman. It will be hard to keep up with the laughs of Joan, Dick.

Will

Audrey Rivers bequeaths her sacred collection of books and stories about the Boston Red Sox to George Stone. Guard them with your life, George.

Parry Roberts has decided that it would be best for him not to leave anything. Everything might prove handy later on.

To Skippy Saxton goes Harold Lagel's salesmanship ability. Be careful when you're twisting those arms in Warehouse Point, Skip.

Bill Jardine donates to Joan Williams his guitar. It's almost as big as you are, Joanie.

To Dotty Norton go all of Sue Hudson's well written South Winds assignments. Remember 12:00 is the dead line, Dotty.

William Bradt donates his love of jazz records to Ronnie Burnham. Get those records red hot, Ronnie.

Alma Carlson kindly bequeaths her lovely hair to Zula Mae Carey. Don't forget 'Halo' will help you look like an angel, Zula.

Simone Carter wills her quiet ways to Steve Wisneski. Was that your laugh we just heard, Steve, or did you crack another joke?

To Marilyn Bannock, Irene Clifton leaves her entire notebook on the fine aspects of living in Scantic. Keep up the tourist trade, Marilyn.

Marilyn Davies has relinquished her friendly ways to Shirley Bancroft. "A friend a day" is a good motto, Shirley.

Aurel Dewey bestows upon Donna Chapman her job as chauffeur after the school dances. Don't drive through any trees, Donna.

Mary Dziubinskas wills to Mary Kissane her sweet and mild manners. Remember, Mary, good tempers make good friends.

Joan Clifton is the recipient of all the questions Marion Elinskas had to answer in the English class debates.

David Fairbanks leaves all those vocabulary words he had to learn for English to Elaine Barber. A hundred words a night will add up to a pretty good vocabulary, Elaine.

Lorraine Foster bestows upon Sally Lyman all her musical talents and trips to All-State.

Donna Gallagher donates to Sally Frink her love of the world and everyone in it.

To Ronnie Driscoll, Ralph Larson sadly gives his ability to be a walking dictionary. Don't forget how to spell antidisestablishmentarianism, Ron.

June Muir and Elaine Packer, the senior twins, surrender their many artistic talents to Alex and John Poulos, the freshmen twins.

Richard Osborn sadly gives up his Model 'T' Ford to Buzzy Mellen. Why don't you admit that a Ford is better than a Packard or Plymouth, Buzz?

Nina Parent kindly bestows her long walk from the late buses upon Tucker Allen. Better bring along an extra pair of shoes, Tucker.

Ronald Roberts relinquishes his assorted collection of muscles to Ted Wuskell. Be sure to use them as well as Ron did, Ted.

Barbara Smith bequeaths her daily ride on the Wapping bus to George Collins. Take good care of Barbara's favorite seat, George.

Howard Smith just leaves with one final word to the freshmen. Take good care of next year's seniors; they look like a hopeless case.

Diane Stiles bestows her quiet dignity upon Ellen McCaffery. Diane has set a good example, Ellen.

Joan Chapman is the recipient of the much used knitting needles of Jane Donihee. Keep them clicking, Joan.

Alice Zaleski leaves all the visits she gets from Manchester to Ann Parent. Keep the visitors all happy, Ann.

Stanley Morrey and Lois Huter, with much sorrow and regret, surrender the job of writing the class will to anyone with unruffled nerves, plenty of spare time, and strong fingernails that won't chew off easily.

Here on the eighth of June we, the President, Herbert Grandahl; Vice President, Thomas Jurgelas; Secretary, Sally Morrey; Treasurer, Jean Rose, do hereby affix our seal to this, our last will and testament, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty-one.

Signed, sealed, and declared by the Class of 1951 for their last will and testament, in the presence of those who have hereunto subscribed themselves as witnesses.

SCENE: Sally Morrey's seated at a desk in a well furnished office. The year is 1971. There is a knock at the door.

Sally: (Going to the door) Hello, Louis. Won't you come in?

Louis: (Looking around) Hello, Sally. Say, you certainly have a nice office. It looks as though you have done well for yourself.

Sally: Oh, yes, I have. Who ever thought that I would end up working for a former class-mate?

Louis: Not I. Anyway, how is the program coming for the Class of '51 reunion?

Sally: Fine, I just completed it today.

Louis: Good. Let's take a look at it. Hmmmm, will Charles Gudnaitis and your brother Stanley be able to come to the reunion?

Sally: Yes, I think they will. As you know, ever since they went down to the South Pole to introduce organized sports to the penguins, they have been out of communication with the rest of the world. But Harold Lagel, who was returning by way of South America from a weight lifting tour in Europe, met Stan and Charlie and brought them word of the class reunion.

Charlie and Stan sent word back by Harold that they hoped they would make it.

Louis: Well, after all that, I certainly hope they do make it. By the way, I found out from Howard Smith yesterday that we may use his 150 story hotel in his hometown of Broad Brook for the reunion. Audrey Rivers, his very efficient secretary, is going to take care of all the arrangements. Well, what are we having for entertainment?

Sally: Donald Baltulonis, who has been appointed director of the world famous Wapping Symphony, said that he would be glad to furnish the music. Lorraine Foster will be with us also because she's been with the symphony for a number of years.

Louis: By the way, Sally, did you know that Don won the Nation's Safest Driver Award last month?

Sally: No, I didn't. That's fine. Speaking about driving, Jim Jorgensen has just taken over the management of the famous Indianapolis Speedway. His public relations director is Lorraine Smith.

Louis: Oh, yes. I remember Lorraine and Jim well. Is that all we have for the entertainment?

Sally: No, Richard Osborn has agreed to put on his famous Osborn Ballet for us. You know, of course, that Ricky composed the ballet himself, and that's an accomplishment for anyone. That's all I have planned so far.

Louis: Well, I can talk to Anthony Euskavech and see whether we can borrow Bill Bradt and Gladys Sinsigalli from his night club, "Antonine's Chateau."

Sally: I hope we can. Bill plays the trumpet as Harry James used to do, and Gladys sings like a nightingale.

Louis: I'll have to talk to him about them. I guess that takes care of the entertainment, doesn't it? Is everyone coming?

Sally: Joan Rittlinger, Rosemary Riester, and Irene Clifton might not make it.

Louis: No! Why not?

Sally: This letter from Joan explains it. I'll read a part of it to you. "Rosemary, Irene, and I are hoping we can make the Class of '51 reunion. We are going to the Belgian Congo for the World Conference of Nurses. I hope we will be back in time."

Louis: I hope they will too. Parry Roberts said that he and Tommy Petruska are donating the services of their Interstate Helicopter Company to anyone who hasn't transportation to the reunion.

Sally: That's very nice of Parry and Tommy, but I don't think the helicopters will be used.

Louis: Are you sure?

Sally: Well, only yesterday I received a telegram from Marilyn Davies, and she said she is coming down from her hunting lodge in Maine by canoe. David Fairbanks is going to navigate for her. She'd bring Margaret Kissane with her, but someone has to remain at the lodge as a guide.

Louis: Oh! I just remembered something.

Sally: What now?

Louis: I didn't tell you about Anna Howard. She has just opened her roller skating rink in South Windsor. She's chief instructor of fancy skating. And guess what? She is going to skate to the reunion.

Sally: That's risky business, but I think Anna will get to the reunion without any trouble.

Louis: Have you seen any of the new television shows lately, Sally?

Sally: No, I haven't. I've been quite busy these last few weeks. Anyway, why do you ask?

Louis: Well, Mary Dzuibinskas is now the manager of the C. B. S. color television network. When you do get a chance to watch a TV show, be sure to see Kukla, Arlene and Ollie.

Sally: You've got your names mixed up, haven't you, Louis? Isn't that show called Kukla, Fran and Ollie?

Louis: Not since Arlene Luchina took over the manipulation of those famed puppets.

Sally: Is that what Arlene is doing now? I've often wondered where she was. You know, Louis, it certainly is funny how the students in our class have made such successes of their lives.

Louis: Yes, it is. Why just recently Ralph Larson, president of the Most Energetic Men of America Club, presented Earl Kreyssig the Charles Atlas award.

Sally: That's certainly nice of Ralph. (Telephone rings) Pardon me, Louis. The President's office. Miss Morrey speaking. (Pause) No, I'm sorry, but the President is in conference and cannot be disturbed. Is there a message? (Pause) You're welcome. Now where were we? Oh, yes, I have another letter here; this one is from Mme. Fifi.

Prophecy

Louis: Who is Mme. Fifi, and what does she say?
Sally: Oh, Mme. Fifi is Alma Carlson, and she says that her dress shoppe in Paris is very profitable. Diane Stiles and Pat Allen, her two models, will accompany her to the reunion.

Louis: And who ever thought that Jean Rose and Harriet Shea would be so successful with their interior decorating business? Why, wasn't it after his re-election to the presidency, Herb Grandahl had them do over the White House?

Sally: Yes, that's right.

Louis: (Looking around) And by the looks of it, they did a fine job with the executive offices too.

Sally: Before I forget it, Nina Parent and Jean Kostek are having everyone over to their night club in Wapping after the reunion.

Louis: That will be nice. We'll not only be having fun, but we'll also be seeing all our hometowns again. I wonder whether we'll be able to recognize everyone in our class now. You know I read in the paper last night that Nancy Sinclair celebrated her fifteenth year of teaching etiquette at Vassar.

Sally: Oh yes, I read that too. And before I forget it, let me read you part of a letter I received from John Eckert yesterday:

"Bill Jardine and I are leaving tomorrow on horse-back from Snake Flats, Montana, for the reunion. Bill is going to bring his guitar along on the trip, and I am going to play my saxophone."

That certainly will help them keep their minds off the long trip.

Louis: Some other celebrities will also be present, Sally. I read in Jean Badstubner's and Marjorie Bahler's magazine, Women's Future, that Alice Zaleski is the first woman mayor of Manchester. Now the same issue featured a story about Janet Lynskey, the director of the F.B.I., who recently appointed Barbara Smith her special agent.

Sally: I read that too. By the way, Louis, did you notice in the same issue the colored photograph of June Muir's painting which is in New York in Marilyn Macdonald's Museum of Art? The critics were most impressed with the picture.

Louis: Oh, yes, I saw the picture. And to think she never took a lesson! You know, just before I came over, I stopped at Donihee's Dandy Dairy Ice Cream Parlor, owned and managed by Jane Donihee, and whom do you suppose I heard singing? None other than Faith Jardine. Why, I heard that she has been singing commercials for Anna Prankus for quite some time. Anna is the advertising agent for Tom Jurgelas and Simone Carter's undertaking business.

Sally: I called the school the other day to get information on the whereabouts of some of our classmates and Elaine Packer answered the phone. She's the office secretary now.

Louis: Oh! I forgot to tell you about her. Did she help you obtain any information on our unlocated classmates?

Sally: As a matter of fact, she told me that Lois Huter employed Barbara McCray to teach advanced sewing at her girls' finishing school in Wapping. Marilyn Bolles and Marjorie Biggs are working at the Pasqualini Insurance Corporation in the calculating department. Everyone has really been doing very well for himself, but I wonder whether things are still the same at E. M. H.S.? You know, of course, Louis, that the principal of Ellsworth is Aurel Dewey. The school is now a prep school for Vassar.

Louis: No wonder the school has had the most perfect attendance record in the United States since Ronald Roberts was appointed truant officer!

Sally: Well, can you beat that!

Louis: Did you know that Jean Ident was named director of all athletic activities at the school? I understand that Connie McGill is the United States History teacher.

Sally: That sounds like a good staff, but I wonder where Mr. Loeffler is now. I probably shouldn't tell you this because it hasn't been officially released yet, but Herb has signed the bill for Donna Gallagher and Georgia Karvelis to go ahead and experiment with their new invention, an atomic controlled flea trap. I heard from the mouth of the President himself that this contraption, I mean invention, is the greatest since rubberized bubble gum.

Louis: Is that right? You can trust me, Sally. I won't breathe a word of this to anyone.

Sally: You know, after the reunion program is over, we ought to go back to Ellsworth and really look the place over. (Telephone rings) White House — President Grandahl's office. Miss Morrey speaking. (Pause) Yes, hold the wire please. Louis, your secretary, Sue Hudson, would like to speak to you.

Louis: Yes. What! I'll be there in a few minutes.

Sally: What's the matter?

Louis: They're having trouble at the plant with the new Vissophone in the Electronics Laboratory. They want me there as soon as possible.

Sally: Well, we're finished anyway. I had better get the rest of these letters typed for Herb before he's out of conference.

Louis: It was nice to see you again, Sally. I'll be seeing you at the reunion next month.

Sally: You certainly will because I wouldn't miss it for the world.

Louis: Bye now.

Sally: Good-bye.

(As Louis leaves, Sally returns to her typing.)

Class Poem

As we face a world crowded with fears,
Let us never forget the lessons learned here,
Though we didn't always heed the wise advice
Or precious knowledge seldom received twice.

In future years we will reminisce
And not forget the happy days
When we packed the stands and raised the score,
Before our favorite game was o'er.

As we recall the days gone by,
A tear may glisten in our eye
To think of the memories of dear Ellsworth High
Of the joyous hours with friends which now in our past lie.

To those who have helped us, our grateful thanks we give;
And when the world has obtained a firm and lasting peace,
We will look back on what were truly the best years of our lives.

EVA PASQUALINI

Class Song

To Ellsworth High, dear Ellsworth High
As our days together end,
We thank thee for the memories,
Of Ellsworth's friends.
We'll think of thee, dear Ellsworth High,
And cherish dearly thy name.
And whither we go in the years to come,
We will take thy name to fame.

To Ellsworth High, dear Ellsworth High
As our parting time has come,
We thank thee for our teachers true
Our guides in work and fun.
As we leave thee dear Ellsworth High,
And God's chosen path we find,
We'll remember joys you gave to us.
You were friendly, true, and kind.

Chorus:

Farewell to thee, dear Ellsworth High,
We bid a fond adieu.
We thank thee for our past four years.
Good-bye and God bless you.

The Student Council, which was reorganized in 1949 to consist of the class officers of each class, has now progressed to where it can truly be considered the school's governing body. Although committee chairmen attend council meetings, the sixteen class officers are the only voting members.

The eleven council committees, each of which has specific duties to perform, were designed to distribute obligations to more of the student body. The committees meet during a designated period every other week, whereas the council meets during a different class period every other week.

One important factor in the success of the council committee system is the continuing interest and hard work done by the fourteen faculty sponsors.

Advanced Ensemble

A string section was added this year to the expanding advanced ensemble of twenty-two members. Within the group a dance orchestra was formed. Later the entire orchestra accompanied the Musical Comedy, which this year toured local Veterans' Hospitals. The advanced ensemble also took part in the Pops Concert and Instrumental Assembly and played at the annual Sports Banquet, Graduation exercises, and the P.T.A. general spring meeting.

ALL-STATE CHORUS MEMBERS

Band

Although the 1951 band of forty members is the largest in Ellsworth's history, it is still growing. This year the band furnished entrance and exit music at assemblies, played at pep assemblies and the February 9 basketball game, and also participated in the Pops Concert and the Instrumental Assembly. On Memorial Day the group appeared in local parades.

Dancing

The Sports Dance, which has been given in past years to close the soccer season and to begin the basketball season, was changed this year to the "Cinderella Social." Patricia Allen was chosen Queen on the basis of personality and all-round general appearance. Cinderella scenes, silver stars, and white and blue streamers predominated.

Included in the year's program were the following: candle making, a Christmas party, painting trays, handwork, sending a package to Europe, and the annual outing.

At the beginning of its fourth year as a newspaper, the South Winds staff, composed of sixty students, acquired a press room. The soccer record this season consisted of seven wins, three ties, and four losses. Of the twenty-four Ellsworth goals, Stanley Morrey scored fourteen. Ellsworth was one of the four small schools chosen for the CIAC Soccer Tournament. The squad won over Glastonbury 3-2, and while they tied Bloomfield 1-1, the latter was awarded the championship on the basis of corner kicks.
